

Display Case Features Amherst Makerspace

Throughout this month, the library display case, located near the circulation desk, will feature the Amherst Makerspace.

Amherst Makerspace, located at the Amherst Middle School, makes use of a public school's Industrial Arts resources for the community.

This program has transformed an old industrial arts lab into a thriving Innovation and Design Lab for the kids during the day and an adult community Makerspace, in the evening.

Items created in the Makerspace, and information about it will be on display. Be sure to check it out!

We need your help! Do you, or someone you know, have a unique collection or hobby you'd like to share with the community? If so, please e-mail Zola:

Artist Exhibitions

Come explore the talents of local artists in the upcoming months at the library.

January 15 - February 28 - Everything Small Exhibit

This exhibit will feature the artwork of local New Hampshire Artists. Among the artists exhibiting their small artworks are Phillip Bean, Elizabeth Craumer, Sherie Dowsett, Elaine Farmer, Ken Fiery, Tracy Hayes, Marilyn Heaps, Betsy Holmes, Susan King, Sue Leger, Lyudmyla Mayorska, Janice Miller, Roxanne O'Brien, Tami Sciola-Borelli, and Stephen Topia. We invite you to come see what is considered in the art world to be "little gems."

March 1-31 - Watercolorist Jennifer Cook

The public is invited to the opening reception on Sunday, March 5 from 2-4 pm.

With no formal art degree, Jennifer took her first watercolor painting class six years ago where she discovered her love for watercolors. "With watercolor painting, you have no real control over the paint. It goes and flows how it wants. You have to accept it and be patient if you want a strong painting."

Jennifer likes to paint a variety of subject matter ranging from still life to boats and landscapes. She wants to share what she finds beautiful with others through her paintings.

For more information about the exhibits contact Christine Farris at FOLArts@icloud.com.

April 1-30 - Color Pencil Artist Tina Gagnon

Tina is a color pencil artist whose work captures both the vivid and sometimes subtle colors found in nature. Having spent her professional career in the Graphic Arts industry, in 2007 she embarked on her Fine Arts career. "Going through an old closet, I came across my twenty year old set of colored pencils. Why not? I gave them a chance. It was with them that I found what I was missing. My love of colored pencils was born right then and there."

A Note From Your Library Director

Amy Lapointe's Quick Picks for Books Coming out January - April

Leopard at the Door by Jennifer McVeigh - I've been anxious for McVeigh to write another book ever since I fell in love with "The Fever Tree" (a cross between Gone with the Wind, The Painted Veil, and Out of Africa.) Set in 1950s Kenya, the story's central character deals with personal turmoil amidst political upheaval.

The Sleepwalker by Chris Bohjalian - A mother who is a chronic sleepwalker goes missing and the worst is assumed, but nothing is as it seems. Chris Bohjalian teases apart family and community dynamics and current issues like a skilled surgeon. He never disappoints.

The Most Dangerous Place on Earth by Lindsey Lee Johnson - How would you like to go back to High School and face all of the drama of adolescence in a world where every moment might be captured on film, analyzed via social media, and shared with everyone you know? This novel explores the complicated web of a group of ultra-privileged California kids.

The Girl Before by JP Delaney - This year's "Girl on a Train" will keep you twisting and turning all night.

Always by Sarah Jio - Alternating between past and present, Kailey must decide what she wants and what it is worth to her after her perfect life, perfect job, perfect fiancé unexpectedly come face to face with "the one who got away", now homeless and broken.

My Not So Perfect Life by Sophie Kinsella - Kinsella never fails to deliver a fun and entertaining read. If you want to curl up in front of the fire with something light, this is a sure bet.

A Piece of the World: A Novel by Christina Baker Kline - This historical fiction imagines the world captured in Andrew Wyeth's iconic "Christina's World". For fans of "Girl with a Pearl Earring" or anything by Susan Vreeland.

The Orphan's Tale by Pam Jenoff - This is another harrowing World War II novel for readers who loved Kristin Hannah's "The Nightingale".

The stars are Fire by Anita Shreve - Shreve takes us to Maine in 1947, to an imagined story of a woman with young children who lived through the largest forest fire in the history of the state. But after the fires burn out, having leveled whole towns, Grace Holland feels more free than ever before.

I Found You by Lisa Jewell - Decades of secrets, a young bride, and a man with amnesia, make this a sure pick for fans of Liane Moriarty.

The Shadow Land by Elizabeth Kostova

The author of "The Historian" is back for a gripping tale unfolding the history of Bulgaria. A central figure begins the tale in an urn, but will emerge as an unforgettable character.

Sundays at 4

Each year the Friends sponsor the musical "Sundays at 4" programs at the library. It is always well attended. In fact, reservations are required (via the library website or circulation desk). Ruslyn Vear does a fantastic job picking very talented and interesting programs. In addition to funding we provide snacks at the programs themselves.

The dates are as follows:

- February 12 - Trio D'amis" in Concert (pianist, celloist, violinist)
- March 12 - Music of the Emerald Isle: the Jordan TW Trio in Concert" (fiddles, etc.)
- April 2 - "Tap into Spring: Jenny Herzog and Jacob Hiser in Concert" (tap dancer/singer and pianist)

We need volunteers to provide some cookies, brownies, fruit or cheese & crackers or other small finger foods. Drop off at the library about 3:30.

Send a quick email to Paula Schmida (Hospitality Chair) paulaschmida@yahoo.com or friendsoftheamherstlibrary@gmail.com with what dates you would like to help and what you would like to bring.

A huge thank you in advance!
